Overview

This special session focuses on AI-driven approaches to securing Cyber Physical Systems (CPS). There is a growing gap between the complexity of cyber-physical attacks and the capabilities of traditional security solutions for smart industrial manufacturing and critical infrastructure. The session welcomes interdisciplinary contributions that bridge research, industry, and policy to strengthen the security of next-generation CPS.

Topics of Interest (But not limited to)

- Deep Learning for Anomaly Detection in CPS
- Secure Optical Communication Using Machine Learning
- Signal-Based Data Injection Attack Detection and Defenses
- Adversarial Attacks and Defense in CPS AI Models
- Optical Network Telemetry for Threat Intelligence
- Federated Learning for Secure CPS Data Analytics
- Digital Twin-Based Cybersecurity for IoT-CPS
- Privacy and Trust Management in IoT-CPS
- AI-Enhanced CPS Forensics
